

The keeper of dying languages

With the death of Boro and Boa senior, two of the four Great Andamanese languages would have died too but for JNU professor Anvita Abbi. The professor of linguistics has won the Padma Shri for her work on tribal and endangered languages. Thanks to her, these dying languages are now preserved in books and multilingual dictionaries. P 5